

Emerging Leaders Conference

Save the Date

November 9–10, 2009

The Hilton, 801 University Drive East, College Station, Texas

Are you a supervisor with three or fewer years of experience? Interested in pursuing supervisory skills? The Emerging Leaders Conference is a great opportunity for you to develop new skill sets and competencies to accelerate your effectiveness as a leader.

This dynamic two-day conference will feature nationally recognized speakers, workshops and activities related to supervisory competencies, responsibilities and roles. One of the highlights of the conference will be a presentation on how Emotional Intelligence can be used for leadership development, personal and career enhancement, and building high-performance teams.

Additional information, including registration details, will be available during the first week of October. Conference attendance is limited to 50 participants.

*"If your actions inspire others to dream more, learn more,
do more and become more, you are a leader."*

— John Quincy Adams

Featured Speakers

Jamie L. Callahan
Texas A&M University

Jamie L. Callahan is an associate professor in the Educational Human Resource Development Program at Texas A&M University. She has held multiple positions in the Academy of Human Resource Development, including serving on the board of directors. Her primary research interests focus on emotion management and its relationship to organizational phenomena.

Frank Keck, CPS
Conference Facilitator

Frank Keck has developed and presented exciting seminars and training programs that have had a dramatic effect on helping organizations push beyond self-imposed limitations to develop new levels of accomplishment.

For more information, contact:
Beverley A. Rose
AgriLife Human Resources
979-458-3279
barose@ag.tamu.edu

Emerging Leaders Conference

November 9–10, 2009

The Hilton, 801 University Drive East, College Station, Texas